

STORMED

Written by

Elena Morales Jiménez

1. EXT. OCEAN TIDE - NIGHT

Black screen. Storm and wave sounds. Fade in into a strong ocean tide from an underwater perspective fills the screen. Deafening sound.

2. INT. LEAH'S PARENTS' HOUSE/MATT'S HOSTEL ROOM/MONTAGE - MORNING

Heavy breathing sounds. In their respective houses, between bed sheets, LEAH (25) and MATT (27) desperately fighting to get out. They are having a nightmare. Their faces are not visible yet. After a few long seconds, both find an escape hole and rapidly sit up in bed, hyperventilating, with a scared look on their face.

Leah is a beautiful woman with an innocent face, messy brunette hair and of pale complexion.

Matt, shirtless, is an attractive, fit man with piercing blue eyes, his brunette hair is freshly shaved.

Their eye-bags show their exhaustion. Their breathing progressively slows down while they blank stare into their bedroom walls.

SPLIT SCREEN:

Leah enters the spacious old wooden kitchen where her parents, PATRICK (56) and SHANON (53), are having breakfast. Matt washes his face in a poorly illuminated and minimalist bathroom.

SHANON

Good morning, sweetie! Did you sleep well?

Leah groans without looking at her as she reaches the kitchen counter for a banana.

Matt stares at his reflection on the mirror.

3. INT. LEAH'S PARENTS' HOUSE KITCHEN - MORNING

Patrick and Shanon look worried at each other, then back at her opening the banana.

PATRICK

Mom made apple pie. Your favorite.

LEAH

I'm not that hungry... But thank you.

Without looking back at them, Leah starts to walk out of the door.

SHANON

Well, you could at least take some-

Leah leaves the kitchen as she bumps into her sister, SINEAD (18), looking neat in her school uniform. Patrick, Shanon and Sinead share a concerned look.

CUT TO:

4. INT. MATT'S HOSTEL ROOM - MORNING

Matt anxiously looks around the room until he spots his worn watch. He reaches for it and looks at the time: 9:17.

MATT

Fuck, fuck, fuck.

He violently starts throwing around clothes from a small blue suitcase opened in the middle of the room until he finds a wrinkly white T-shirt and a pair of distressed blue jeans. He then messily puts on some white old sneakers and a dark blue bomber jacket that is on the door knob. He leaves the room.

CUT TO:

5. INT. LEAH'S PARENTS' HOUSE - MORNING

Leah is finishing getting ready in her childhood bedroom. No makeup on. She wears black skinny jeans, a black T-shirt and a black leather jacket. She stares at herself in the mirror. Her eyes start to get red but she immediately turns away, takes a big black purse sitting on her desk and leaves the room. As she goes through the house front door, a tear runs down her face.

CUT TO:

6. EXT. FOXROCK NEIGHBORHOOD/DUBLIN CENTER - MONTAGE.
MORNING. FOGGY.

Leah walks with a heavy chest through a quiet street surrounded by expensive looking reddish brick houses, matching with the colors of the fallen leaves. It had been raining earlier. The wind strongly hits Leah's face.

Matt runs through the sketchy streets surrounding the hostel, the Spiral, Temple Bar and some more sketchy streets. The wind also hits his face aggressively.

7. EXT. DUBLIN CENTER - MORNING. FOGGY

A dead end street surrounded by brick buildings. CALLUM (22), a homeless looking guy, shouts at Matt with a strong Irish accent.

CALLUM

Oi, Matt! Matthew! Wanna hit this new shit I got? Best thing in the market!

Matt keeps on running.

MATT

NO CALLUM. NOW IT'S NOT A GOOD TIME. MAYBE LATER.

CALLUM

C'MON MAN. DON'T BE A PUSSY.

MATT

BYE CALLUM.

Matt runs even faster and disappears from Callum's sight.

CUT TO:

8. INT. CAFÉ - MORNING

Leah, with swollen eyes from crying, enters a cozy café where HANNAH (21), a sweet redhead girl, greets her with a broad smile from behind the bar. Leah approaches her.

HANNAH

Leah! Howsagoing? I havent's seen you in ages! Still drinking that matcha thing?

LEAH

Hello, Hannah. I'm good. Just busy.

Hannah looks at her intrigued.

LEAH (CONT'D)

Oh... An espresso, please.

HANNAH

Wow, love! You sure you are OK? Didn't coffee make you more nervous?

LEAH

I suppose I'll be fine...

Leah tries to fake a laugh but Hannah notices her pain.

HANNAH

Sure... An espresso coming. To go?

Leah nods. She anxiously waits for her coffee, fidgeting with her hands, as Hannah prepares it. Seconds later, Hannah places the coffee on the counter. Leah takes out her wallet out of her jacket.

HANNAH (CONT'D)

Well, it's on the house. I'm just happy to see you here again. Come again soon!

LEAH

(Calmly)

You are the sweetest, Hannah. Mind yourself.

Hannah watches Leah leaving through the door. Her broad smile turns into a sad face.

CUT TO:

9. EXT/INT. THERAPIST RECEPTION - MORNING

Matt rapidly enters a building, runs upstairs and enters into the therapist reception. The room is small, without windows. The walls are yellowish and there are a few colorful armchairs next to the reception desk, where a 50 year old man is focused writing on a desktop.

MATT

(out of breath)

Hi... I have a meeting with Dr. Smith... Theresa! Theresa Smith. It's my first day.

The receptionist looks at him indifferently.

RECEPTIONIST

Name?

MATT

Oh, shit, yeah, sorry. Matthew Doyle.

The receptionist types on the keyboard emotionless.

RECEPTIONIST

Please, sit on the waiting room here. Dr. Smith will call you.

MATT

OK. Thank you.

Matt takes a deep breath and sits in a blue armchair. In front of him, a bunch of books and magazines lay on top of a small wooden table. One of the books stand out to him: "The first day of your best life". He takes it a looks at it intrigued. DR. SMITH/THERESA (37), a good-looking, put together woman comes out of a door behind the reception desk.

DR. SMITH

Mr. Doyle?

Matt recovers from her abstraction, leaves the book back on the table and stands up. He dries his sweaty hands on his jeans, nods and smiles awkwardly. He walks towards Dr. Smith, who turns around a leads him into the other room.

CUT TO: